Dear Sirs:

I have come to the conclusion that Journalists assume a posture of objectivity largely because journalism doesn't have the 'guts' to take a position relative to our laws and constitution.

Why don't you on C-5pm Compensate against this "yellow journalism" by

1. Having your guests and your hosts let the public know their position on a number of topics, esp. such as abortion, taxes, and other major issues
2. Establish a department of specialists on the Constitution to explain to the radicals on both sides what the Constitution and the Courts have established to be its meaning.

To Whom It May Concern

Dear Sirs:

I have come to the conclusion that Journalists assume a posture of objectivity largely because journalism doesn't have the 'guts' to take a position relative to our laws and constitution.

Why don't you on C-span Compensate against this "yellow journalism" by

1. Having your guests and your hosts let the public know their position on a number of topics, esp. such as abortion, taxes, and other major issues.
2. Establish a department of specialists on the constitution to explain to the radicals on both sides what the Constitution and the courts have established to be its meaning.

I am appalled at the ignorance, even the noodle-brain ideology, of many of your reporters and journalists. Seldom a day passes without a number of callers in who patently do not realize that they are advocating the overthrow of our basic laws. I do understand that each citizen has the right to protest, but I don't think a public body, like C-Span, should be permitted to advocate an overthrow without understanding the basic laws of our land.

After such a protest as television is a public protest affecting millions of viewers

Sincerely Yours
