Dear Sir,

On Monday, July 22nd I was watching C-Span and was upset to see that the titles stated that the Prime Minister of Australia was speaking at the Labour Party Conference in Tanzmania. There is no such place in Australia, the state is in fact called Tasmania, and as an Australian living in the United States for 12 months, I was disappointed by this fundamental error.

As pleased as I was to see news of Australia, I was dismayed by this display of ignorance towards a western counterpart.

This may appear to be a minor error but I feel it epitomizes the lack of knowledge about Australia which is displayed by the media and many of the citizens of this country.

I trust that you will strive for accuracy in the future.

Yours faithfully,

[REDACTED]
