

P.S. I surfed the networks at 7:15 for a couple seconds to see what was going on. All had democrat defenders. My husband turned on CNN in the middle of the night and found the same. Threesheers for C-SPAN. Thank you.

o-ho! impeach

Dear Brian, (Mr. Lamb!!)

Yesterday was historic and though I tried to get through to C-SPAN yet again, (!) no chance. Here are my 2¢s!

I watched the WHOLE thing, running to the bank and P.O. during the 45 min lunch break. Correction - I deliberately turned the sound off my T.V. to avoid hearing several of the Congressmen whom I believe attend regular classes given by that famous pit bull, James Carville. Here I am a Massachusetts resident (5 yrs.) and try as I have, I cannot listen to Barney Frank anymore or to Mr. Wexler or to any of the Congressmen who make a career of slash, burn and "destroy" while not discussing facts in a forum designed to find the truth. After hearing Mr. Delahunt and Mr. Meehan, two other Democrats from this state, I felt embarrassed on the one hand and then realized that living in Massachusetts has to be much like living in Arkansas. The power of the Kennedys has succeeded in making this pretty much a one party state, except for reasons beyond my comprehension, at the governor's office. I had so hoped for a serious civil questioning of the facts but when Mr. Delahunt started in and was followed by several interruptions of Mr. Starr's presentation, I knew the Carville crowd was off and running. Tough questions are important, questions about the facts, that is, if we are to learn anything but they can be asked so that we don't feel that we're witnessing a bunch of reds kindergarteners trying to land blows just for the fun of it.

Judge Starr was excellent and obviously has a keen mind able to concentrate and answer even the rapid fire questions of Mr. Kendall, after 10 hours of scrutiny. We've read a lot about "leaks" from Ken Starr's office, but it was only yesterday that the investigation came about as a result of Mr. Kendall, who apparently is also in the "attack mode. (Amazing!)

I'm a senior citizen and though a registered Republican have thought of myself as an Independent the last 2 or 3 years. What I saw yesterday makes me want to get active in Republican politics again, though I'm thoroughly stymied here. It saddened me to hear Sam Dash's resignation letter read. I guess he would have preferred that Mr. Starr be subpoenaed. Mr. Starr did what our President did not. He accepted the invitation before being forced to.

Sincerely yours, [redacted]
