Dear Mr. Lamb,

I watched your program on Monday. You had a woman (black) on there supposedly a columnist for the L.A. Times. God help the Times!

Her answers to the call-ins were atrocious. Every sentence was laced with, ya know, ya know I mean, I mean. That was apart from her total ignorance on any subject.

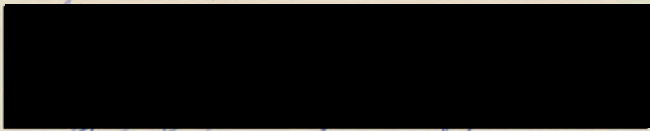

On question from a caller regarding morality in government she expounded on earthquakes and disasters in the L.A. area. Her ignorance and bias was blatant throughout your program. You sat by her side, like a dumb puppet. You should have ~~insisted~~ insisted on an answer.

My question to you.

Doesn't a guest have to meet certain standards to appear on your show? I am not talking about political standards. I am talking about educational, common sense, standards. The average citizen pulled off the street could have done a better job. It is obvious you have no criteria - no requirement, when it comes to the guests. It seems affirmative action is alive and well at C-Span and the Los Angeles Times.

I expect an answer, and may tie up your phone lines trying to get an answer.

Respectfully,

P.S. This particular show, showed you are just like all the others.
