McNamara book review was a great disappointment. Two hours! She show painfully lacked focus - the book. This is the result of an interviewer who meanders and lacks focus, and an author who wanders, takes long, leisurely strolls, and lacks focus.

The "what you do say about the people who say" questions were low quality and shouldn't be asked - you should ask your own questions.

The attempt at invoking an apology was was out of place. The book is history, not a defense or apology. I'm sure.

When all is said and done the book will be remembered as history when all talk of apology will be forgotten.

Repeating call from woman in Tracy, CA was an error. She hadn't read the book. She was self-serving, "my brother",
"my pain," etc.

Subsequent man/woman on the street interviews or above were worthless debasing C-SPSN. She hadn't read the book. The first question on a book should be, "Have you read it?"

Just asking people "Are you a liberal" or "Are you a conservative." This gives too easy opening for your fringe callers to attack.
