Dear Mr. Murphy:

I appreciate the fact the Radio-Television Correspondents Association didn't intend to insult the President. I understand that it was probably embarrassing to have to sit and listen to the I-Man's monologue. But, the Thursday night dinner was the big league. Certainly everybody loves Imus when he nabs somebody else. It seems the association may owe Imus an apology. On the other hand, the whole flap is silly.

Everybody panders to Imus and everyone else. I believe in common courtesy and manners but you don't have to wear a hair-shirt over that evening.

You folks at C-Span do a good job and did so Thursday. I've always understood that we better be careful with the words we use on the way up because we'll be eating them on the way down.

Cordially,

Mr. Terry Murphy
Vice President/C-SPAN
