Thank you for CSPAN.

My complaint is NOT against you!
However, I'm sick to death of your guests who cite poll after poll after poll to substantiate their points of view.

Polling has evidently become big business and most of us "out there" are well aware that a poll can be, and is, manipulated to reflect a given viewpoint.

I do not trust polls any more than I trust ^{most} Republicans to show good sense, or the ability to climb above their party's goals.

I do not trust polls any more than I do the ability of people "in there" to accept sunshine, light and change.

If Clinton does "nothing else," he has shown us "out there" what a bedraggled behemoth the government has become, and how mired it is in sludge.

I have not tried to call, even when I'm angry, because I don't think I could limit myself to the time allotted, but I do have a good time yelling at my television set. It's not very satisfying, but, thanks to you, it is better than nothing.

I have lived in this country for my seventy-five years and not once in all that time have I been contacted by a political pollster.
I therefore deeply resent being lumped in with those who have expressed their opinions, whether I agree with them or not!

Now, I feel better, Thanks!
