

April 22, 1984

C-Span

Suite 155

400 N. Capitol

Washington DC.

It is the view of this observer that C-Span America's Network, is the most informative program in the continental United States and the "Free World"

Three cheers to the C-Span programmers that gives us provocative news stories, political forums, speeches and debates. More importantly, C-Span provides the political, social, and economic arena that allows the viewer the opportunity to make up his or her mind concerning the vital issues facing the world today.

In this day of technological and media bly. It takes a careful thought to produce a news worthy program that holds my undivided attention. In addition, commercials are practically non-existent. Therefore bothersome interruptions seldom hinders a speaker's train of thought.

Unlike other programs, C-Span requires you to be more than a couch potato, or a mindless sponge soaking up beer, violence, fantasy, slam dunks, or mindless soaps.

2

C-Span is a program geared to the wise listener, and to those who desire to get the "entire" picture. In essence, C-Span is a master in bringing the American political process of decision making into proper focus.

For example, C-Span interviewer Carl Rutan program makes what is often called a faceless political process real. His questions are polite, probing, thoughtful, as well as intelligent. Mr. Rutan as always, forces people like Martin Feldstein, Chairman of The President's Council of Economic Advisors to explain in simple terms why he feels large deficits will drive interest rates up.

In many respects, C-Span serves as a crystal ball of "news worthy" expectations. People like Secretary of The Treasury Donald Regan may present detailed ideas and information concerning the budget.

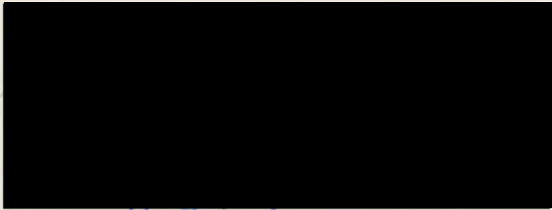

Whereas, the next slot of programming may introduce Alex Haley, Author of "Roots", speaking to The Daughters of the American Revolution Continental Congress. Therefore, in my opinion, C-Span does a outstanding job presenting diversity<sup>3</sup> with depth. That's why I watch C-Span-

"The station that understands."

Sincerely

[REDACTED]

S. Bernd Ind 46637

So. Bend, Ind 46637

C. Apan
Suite 155
4100 N. Capitol
Washington D.C. 2000