Dear Mr. Lamb,

I am writing to tell you how very much I enjoyed your two and a half hours with Mr. Ross Perot.

I watch your shows on C-SPAN whenever I am able. I especially enjoy The Journalist's Roundtable and Booknotes.

I sensed some moments of frustration during the call-in section of the Perot program on your part. I do understand. Mr. Perot is a powerful personality, and wishes to control the conversations. I am not turned off by that, but quite the contrary, since I agree with Mr. Perot. Anyone who disagrees with him, or questions his motives finds his personality hard to deal with.

All the above says, is that powerful people dislike other powerful people who do not allow the former to control a situation.

I missed the Meet The Press program with Mr. Perot as a guest much to my chagrin. However, my comment on what I have heard is that the media heartily dislikes Mr. Perot, and many are quite willing to do their part to try to humiliate him. My belief ~~is~~, as I watch "Roundtable", is that media personnel dislike anyone who challenges their power and superiority no matter who it may be. Often their disdain of the people and callers is very obvious.

Once again, thank you for the Perot presentation. I loved it.

A viewer,
