

Dear Brian

Will you and C-span please ask the media to comment on what I am saying; I think all Americans should be made to realize; the media have never been liberal or conservative, that is just something they want the public to believe; in other words it's a little mind game they have been playing with the public for years, and in some instances some might even call it one of their power plays. Because the media is no different from any other special interest group; because that is really what the media is all about; Power; and since the media seem to think they shouldn't and can't be held to the same moral standards as others, I think they are beginning to think they are untouchable and powerful enough to make or break anyone they choose. Sure the public knows the media is going feed us some trash and dirt every once in awhile, and that's okay; because the public do like a little soap sometimes. But when the media start feeding the public nothing but trash, dirt and allegations before they get any true facts, for the purpose of trying to destroy someone, then I think we all should have cause to be concern.
