Sirs:

I think, sirs, that you may as well discontinue your designation of lines for "Conservative"; "Moderate"; "Liberal."

I have been calling steadily for the past six weeks to two months on the "Conservative" line (where I truly belong) with nothing but a busy signal response. Meantime, any number of people get through on that line, according to the words of introduction by ^{Brian} ~~Brian~~ or whomever is hosting the program that day - and clearly their message is at once an attack on the "radical right"; or on "Ken Starr" or on the "Republican Party" - so anyone can see their dishonesty in calling on 202/624-1115. Clearly, however, dishonesty is not a questionable practice to Liberals. I've heard Brian call attention to the disparity between their call on the Conservative line and the blatantly liberal opinion they deliver. They don't give it any response when that occurs. In effect, C-Span is serving as an enabler for this dishonesty, and you should either discontinue doing so or discontinue the charade.

I wrote you earlier along this line.
I am the widow of a World War II Navy
Pharmacist's Mate who did detached duty with the First Marine Air Wing. This won't mean much to most people but Brian is a former Navy man and he will know what it means.

I truly appreciate C-Span, and at the age of 81+ years I have seen a lot of life - a lot of good and bad in government, the economy, world affairs. I still believe in honesty first and foremost, and most of all, I want it practiced in the governmental affairs and all the offices related to governance of the United States of America.

Thanks again for C-Span.

Gratefully,
