Dear Brian:

Just finished watching your regular Friday morning call-in program and want to congratulate you on another splendid show. The topics were important and the majority of the callers quite good in presenting a wide range of viewpoints. I have no way of knowing how much pre-screening is done by your staff before the caller is put on the air but the program does a good job of giving a fair and balanced assortment of public thought.

A special request that you include Pete Williams in future programs as much as his schedule will permit. While the networks, CNN and PBS have their stable of competent regular panelists, all who have preparation time and a predetermined set of topics, none has the ability to handle spontaneous questions as skillfully and convincingly as Pete. It is also refreshing to get answers and insights without the obvious bias of some of the other panelists.

I look forward to Booknotes on Sunday evenings primarily because of your style of interviewing. Keep up the good work and thanks to the cable industry for C-Span.

Very truly yours,
