Mr. Lamb:

This morning after a number of days of effort I got through to open phones. I can say I am sorry I did. I wanted for one thing, to make the point that we see things differently. It doesn't make one right or wrong, just we can look at the same situation and see it differently. Point being some real time magazine and see it favorable to President Clinton. What I have read does not tell me that. I am still searching for the liberal press that has given President Clinton so many breaks. It is a pure lie put out to the public to justify a channel like Fox News and the "Crap" put out on the 700 Club.

Now to the part that made me sorry I called. I am so very tired of people calling in and saying if our military is is to be held to a certain standard, then our Commander in Chief should be too. I cannot remember the name of the Military officer an earlier caller alluded to but I was trying to say Comparing the two are Apples and Oranges. The military officer is being Accused of sexual harassment of military women under his Command, specifically. The same cannot be said of Mr. Flowers. Paula Jones was hardly directly Accountable to the Governor and I sincerely believe the only sex between Monica and Our President is in Monica's "little fantasy world". If our Commander in Chief must step down then so should every military man or woman who has done something immoral, against a spouse, fiancée, girl or boy friend, any one guilty (and obviously we don't have to bother to prove guilt or not anymore) of any form of sexual harassment. We will have a very sparse Military strength left.

Then I think we should go into Congress and set up the same standards. This is Cruel and Nasty and I hate going so low, but you can't get lower than some of the things callers to Washington Journal have said of our President. The difference between the morals many Republicans say President Clinton has (I do not agree) and their morals is they divorced their wives and married their affairs.

Another point I tried to make was the difference between whether it happened in the workplace or in private life.

I realize you were running out of time but you weren't listening to what I was trying to say.

I also want to say, if lying and disruption of a legal process are the issues here, why is Newt Gingrich still speaker of the house, why is Ollie North still running for office when he so chooses. I have called many times hoping to get in when someone from President Bush's Administration is on so I could ask if it is true or not that President Bush has yet to turn over Papers "requested" of him.

Back to the Commander in Chief issue, no military officer, Service man, Congress man, no news paper reporter anyone in the media, in this world, could look good if they had the same press scrutiny placed on them that President Clinton has had on him.

Unbelievable Scrutiny, Nothing short of harassment.

Free press has a whole new, much more accurate definition now. Free Press: Free to do, say, print anything you want without finding out how factual or truthful it is first. Having the story out first is more important than accuracy or decency.

I also wish the "Right Wing", Republicans would please just saying President Clinton should come out and talk about it, answer questions, set the record straight, get this settled, whatever their line may be. I say, We did, and remember what they and the media did with his answers to Jim Lehrer? Also when did we last hear Bill Clinton's voice and what does Monica have to say ????

I don't hear any of them calling for that. I certainly hope they will soon be seeing the bottom of their basket of dirty, sleazy, unsubstantiated allegations.

I realize some people are trying to be helpful, but I wish those who call in saying, "So he is not perfect, what does this have to do with the job he is doing, it's a testosterone thing in powerful men, etc" would please refrain from doing so. President Clinton does not need excuses for his behavior (alleged behavior). He needs people who believe in him. I am proud of our President and the first family. I am ashamed of our majority leaders in Congress who lied to us the first day they took over. They said this was going to be a different Congress; more family oriented and Christian. Getting revenge and blatantly breaking the 8th Commandment over and over again is not Christian.

Sincerely,
