C-Span--Washington Journal
Washington, D.C. 20001

Dear Host:

Thank you for C-Span with deep felt gratitude, and especially the Washington Journal segment. You are educating the American people with your two-sided, calm presentation of various viewpoints. Part of Washington Journal yesterday was a segment on a reading program, sponsored by Congressman Gingrich. An excellent program. However, part of the background of the reading program was omitted. When Gingrich announced the program to pay school kids to read books, he offered it as an alternative to "overhead-heavy bureaucracies." In reality, he has given almost half the model project's endowment to a crony who is writing the authorized Gingrich biography. This fact was reported in the Wall Street Journal.

Even though I am a Republican, why can't these politicians tell it straight.

Sincerely,

Spring Hill, FL 34606-4833

First, you butter them up, then you make your complaint. (First paragraph)

Complaint: You don't show your post office address often enough. I had to wait 3 days, that is the reason for the delay in mailing this note.
