

Arlen Redekop photo

Luke Kurvers finds 'bad radiation' in the ground, and according to a number of satisfied customers, the White Rock man's methods seem to work.

Getting out 'bad vibes'

By Anne Rachelle McHugh
MetroValley News

A White Rock man says the simple act of moving a bed or favorite chair can calm a restless child or cure an illness.

The solution, he explains, is to reroute bad earth radiations which, if a person is exposed to them long enough, will cause symptoms ranging from headaches to temper tantrums in children.

It could be hocus-pocus, the 69-year-old financial advisor admits, but the proof is in the pudding.

"I have no concrete proof, but anyone who says it is cut and dry is mistaken — even the doctors don't know everything."

"There are a lot of things we have lost in the modern day," he says of society. "We are skeptical, we say 'show me first'."