

Damn! For the umpteenth time: the misspellings of names should embarrass you. They irritate, yes, but they also detract from any instructional ^{for} ^{others} value.

Today, Jean-Guillaume d'Hérouville. That surely should have been Guillaume - the "u"
from the French version of William was missing.

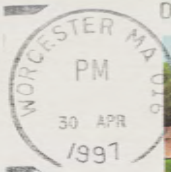

And that was for a family member. Your staffer had to have the correct spelling.

And Mirielle Pasporeau? That should be Mireille [the "e" and "i" were transposed.

...unless the French have changed the spelling of common names. Can't you fix the problem???

o.7066

Worcester Ma 01602

C-SPAN

400 North Capitol St NW
Suite 650
Washington DC 20001

