

002594 JUN 1 1993

Wauwatosa, Wisconsin 53222
May 28, 1993

C-Span
400 North Capitol St., NW
Suite 650
Washington, DC 20001

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter gives me a wonderful opportunity to express my appreciation for C-Span. If I had to select one channel on my television, it would be yours. Thank you so much for providing fair, unbiased, and intelligent coverage on our government.

The House of Representatives Democrats who voted for this tax-and-spend budget are going to be held responsible. Americans sent a clear message--they elected their representatives with a mandate to cut spending first, no tax increases, and deficit reduction. The Democrats, (except 38 courageous ones) voted against their constituents' wishes. It is a dark day in American history. Americans' hope for this great country and the survival of democracy is dim. Those democratic representatives who voted (strong arming some) for this budget because they were "supporting" their president (whose public confidence level has plummeted in the polls) should be extremely apprehensive on returning to their constituents this Memorial Day weekend. The voters across the country are exceedingly angry that their wishes were not addressed--REDUCE SPENDING FIRST; NO NEW TAXES--and will remember this vote.

President Clinton is bright, but he is not wise. He lacks judgment and common sense. The American people perceive this weak president with severe character flaws and making public relations blunders.

How do you create wealth with higher taxes? Higher taxes will not improve the economy, but stifle it. Americans are probably the most generous in the world (in 1992, contributions to charity were over $124 billion). This will certainly change now. As higher taxes destroy the family budget, every day will be a reminder of what the Democrats and the Clinton administration did to them. The Democrats' idea of fairness is spreading the misery around.

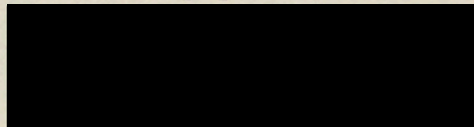

All Americans have a choice. They can pursue what used to be called the "American Dream", forestall immediate pleasures and make large sacrifices for the day when their hard work and investment in their future will pay off, or they can go for the easy way out, lack incentive and motivation and the hard work ethic, and look to the ones in the first group to take care of them. As I see it, President Clinton's budget takes it away from the first group and provides for the second by increasing welfare programs where abuses abound.

This budget vote was a vote to stifle free enterprise and economic growth, a vote to break the spirit and discourage people's incentives to "make something of themselves." Why pursue a career in medicine, for example, and look forward to 12-17 years beyond high school living at the poverty level of grueling and highly competitive effort and accumulate a huge debt only to be penalized for reaching your goal at near middle age not only with unfair taxes but as a doctor in Hillary Rodham Clinton's health care reform?

President Clinton would do well to be mindful of former President Abraham Lincoln's sage advice: "Public opinion is everything. With it, nothing can fail; without it, nothing can succeed."

Sincerely yours,

A solid black rectangular redaction box covering the signature area.

Faint, illegible handwritten text, possibly a signature or name, visible through the paper.