Dear Brian Lambert:

Today on your program Washington Journal at approximately 9:35 AM you "grabbed a call" from a viewer who expressed her belief that in her opinion that people "out here" do not care what Sally Quinn says in her Washington Post article. Your response to this caller, in my opinion, was rude and uncalled for. Are you ill? I would like you, Brian to tell a caller that Mrs. Quinn writes about the Washington THISTON — (use this expression) establishment and that you would continue to read from the article. You ~~refrained~~ from saying WHETHER you LIKE IT OR NOT but certainly facit in your manner. (over)

If I had a thought about Mrs. Quinn it is that Mrs Quinn believes that she is the social arbiter of DC and that if one does not extend to her what she considers the proper accord, she'll make you feel her pique. Ask J. Carter, and now the Clintons.

We elected this man, not a saint down from heaven to do a job as president. Too bad we didn't ask Mrs Quinn's permission, so she thinks and believes.
Sincerely,

P.S. Trying to get through to you on the phone is an exercise in futility.
