Brian Lamb.

I have enjoyed C span for the last two months when I came across it one last night. It was Fri. morning show. On one of them a caller must of asked about Pres. Bush whether it was a personal question about him or otherwise. I don't remember. One of the people said more would come out as the months go on.

My question is why Bush hasn't been scrutinize like other candidates? I don't feel he was in 88 as he wouldn't answer the question about sons to Iran.

I heard of a personal affair about him but it was hushed up in a hurry.

You hear very little of the Sr I suspect is that because his son is involved?

In these elections I don't like it when they bring up people's past and especially when everything has been taken case of ad resolved. I hope after this election they will put a stop to some of these things. Spending too much money on a campaign and finding all the dirt about their opponent. They should run on their own record. My only reason Bush should have his private life looked into as the other men running had theirs and I believe everyone should be treated alike. President, V. President or Governor etc.

A day or two ago^{word}, I think one of your programs next week is going to be George Bush questioned Wed. AM so I'll try to listen and maybe hear some answers I want to know that will be in fairness to the other candidates.

I thank you,
