

I watch C-Span because it offers something for everyone regardless of age, race, color, creed or political affiliation. C-Span is above all a world affairs forum for the concerned citizen. It enables its viewers to participate in our democratic form of government by questioning the policy makers of our day, listening to important leaders and thinkers in respective fields whether in the form of forums, debates, conventions or other political gatherings including live coverage of the House of Representatives, the Close Up Foundation and Senate Hearings.

Where else can "we the people" become a more intelligent and conscientious electorate in light of the obvious bias of many in the printed and spoken media. America needs journalism that is objective in its approach, fresh in its topics and authentic in its form. C-Span is the answer.
