

Dear Friends at C-Span:

I have done it again! a most wonderful special on "1968".

It encompassed the passions and positions of antagonists and supporters of issues during that most troubled year.

I was 45, and spent much time discussing problems with my teen-agers. I believed, and still do, that the vicious protestors were doing irreparable damage to our country.

Living just outside Chicago, I had great fears of black terrorists who were making dire threats, and it seemed we were living close to an inferno as entire neighborhoods were being burned.

Two years later I visited a mission in one of the neighborhoods, where a black reverend extended his hands to the white community, to build friendship and rebuild a delapidated community.

While I volunteered there I had no fear, although the Black Panthers were a few stores away and across the street. There seemed to be an aura of love (hence safety) surrounding the mission.

The anger and hate overflowed into later years. And I agree with Mrs. Kirkpatrick that our present president is a reflection of the 60's Radicalism, and my 60's fears are rumbling.

Thanks again. I'll continue to watch and thank God for you, and for the fact that our beloved country survived in spite of the onslaughts.

Sincerely,
