Dear Brian,

I read the article in The New Yorker, 3-14-94, and on p. 51 it stated your efforts in the Telecommunications Office ".... were poisoned by the Nixon White House's campaign of intimidation against what it saw as hostile elements in the media."

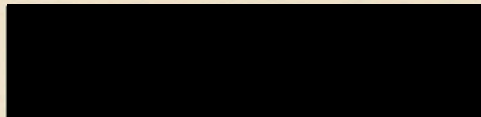

It seems to me they (Nixon?) was right in spotting the trend of despotic power now rampant in the press. I think Nixon was great. Faulted, but no worse than others who were worse & got away with it. We were the laughing stock of the world and why didn't the press write about that? I think it was the start of our decline as a world power.

We need your program over here. We've had 40 years (since the war) of Democratic domination with a governor who brags about "making 40,000 jobs" & I hope President Clinton appoints him ambassador to

Someplace & maybe we can get a Republican in this time. Mrs Sacks (doubtful - there's such an old boy network out there).

Anyhow hope you can come on here more often. Any chance of an 800 number?
Don't forget day light savings there's a 3-hour difference.

and so, Aloha

PS I enjoyed the article very much.
I'm glad you stuck with it and you must be very proud to have thought of it and done it!

Sometimes you are a little too self-promoted (?) - cool?

It's always nice to see you smile.
