Dear Brian,

I'm writing to offer some constructive criticism this morning, and I hope you take it in the spirit it's intended because I think C-span is the greatest thing since apple pie.

I just finished watching your Monday morning "Events in the News" show. There are five major stories in the news this week - the Budget, Gap in the Military, the Midwest Floods, Ruth Ginsburg and Joycelyn Elders. The only thing that was talked about was the Ginsburg nomination. I realize you have no control over the calls that come in, but you did not re-direct the conversation to any other topic during the first half hour. You did not hold up the morning papers and point to a variety of topics as you usually do. I now feel as though I am going "cold turkey" into the week without being "politically prepared". I hope you will go back to your "usual" format next week.

Sincerely,

P.S. Thank you so much for repeating your "Sunday Journal" show. Now those of us on the east coast can watch the Sunday morning talk shows and Sunday Journal without missing a beat - much appreciated. I knew C-SPAN would come through.

P.S.S. an extra special thank you for the broadcast of Pat Buchanan's new radio show - would you give some consideration to broadcasting one of the "American Cause Conferences" in the future?

Final Note - That lady from St. Louis still calls in every week - can't we hook up a direct line to Howard Sterns show and transfer her over?
