

To Brian Lamb,

Instead of putting those reporters out there each AM, to do damage control apologia for their recalcitrant and rat pack behavior, why not, for a change, get the OWNERS, the cowards who hide behind these hapless hostages and pay their salaries?

The owners, that is, who own every TV channel, every radio station, and most of the Press Media.

The very people, in fact, who want to keep things just as they are - and were - because it's been so profitable for them?

Those reporters have an excuse or alibi for themselves for everything, and accountability for nothing, except to their owners, and the Public or proven facts be damned.

I'll bet a plugged nickel, in your coming Magazine week, you won't trot out the real villains, the money men and powers that be, to be questioned about THEIR politics and Agendas. They've been getting a free ride at public expense for a long long time! Let's see some accountability across the board, without drawing this biased line in the sand.

Very Truly Yours,
