Gentlemen:

1. Could you have attractive, pleasant music while we wait for the solution to a question on the floor of the House or Senate?

2. Could you see that a decision is made to use either gentle woman or gentle lady? Gentle woman seems far more appropriate to me as it has long been in use as the proper address for a woman?

3. A fine program is ruined when in the midst of a speech, briefing or announcement what could be an impressive program from someone who appears to have impressive information must be totally disregarded when the speaker finalizes by using incorrect English. Can we acquire more government officials who speak the King's English correctly?

Sincerely,
