Dear Mr. Lamb:

In a recent call-in program, a viewer, in defense of Mr. Clinton, stated that Mr. Lincoln, too, had been elected with a 40% plurality --- and you, Mr. Lamb, were quick not just to concur to the implication, but corrected and expanded on the caller's point, asserting that Mr. Lincoln's vote was actually 39%, not 40%. —

Since it was your decision to share with us your extensive knowledge, perhaps you will, using the same forum, further expand on your recitation and, having already compared, will now contrast and highlight the fact that Mr. Clinton's was a 3-Way Race --- Mr. Lincoln's was a 4-Way Race! — Forty three % on a 3-way Race is a far lesser plurality than Mr. Lincoln's.

You are a man of projected character and integrity --- and credibility, like virginity, can be lost but once.

I look forward to hearing you air an ERRATA.

Just the facts, sir, just the facts.

Respectfully,

P.S. The number of errors by whoever operates the chyron is increasing dramatically. As a token example,
SECOND HAND is NOT ONE WORD (SECONDHAND) --- or principle is the same as PRINCIPAL. - "Misspelling"
is more common and ending sentences with prepositions is becoming a matter of course. - Got some new girls on the job?
