Dear C-Span,

Thanks for the excellent coverage in New Hampshire. You deserve all the plaudits you've been receiving. Please don't be tempted to ^{change} ~~improve~~ an already "best" product.

Some thoughts -

after the March for Life in D.C. with about 100,000 other pro-lifers, it was disheartening to see all of the Democratic presidential candidates bowtowing to Kate Michelman at the NARAL banquet on all the news networks, covered more than the March, but that's par for the course.

No matter how good their message, I could not in conscience vote for anyone who would perpetuate this American holocaust of abortion; we're talking about 26,000,000 lives that were snuffed out.

That's not to say I'm happy with George Bush. Last year about this time I was in a deep funk with the war in the Gulf. The control of the press by this administration ^{was} ~~is~~ unpardonable. The misery inflicted on the Iraqi people, and especially the children, is unforgivable. The fact that so many of our own boys were killed by "friendly fire" took too long to become public knowledge. I believe the news media must start doing (over) its job in an unbraced fashion, and not merely be an outlet for the administration's press releases. They're going to have to take ~~the~~ chances and challenge the way things are ^{done now}. For Buchanan would not be my Republican presidential candidate at this point although I like many of the positions he takes.

I would certainly like to hear what Jack Kemp has to say. He certainly has a solid political background. That he said there were "gimmicks" in the ^{Buch's} State of the Union speech indicates to me that he may not be in total agreement with this Administration.

Lastly, I look forward to C. Spax coming to Pennsylvania for the U. S. Senate race which should be very interesting.

Sincerely,
