Dear Mr. Lamb:

This is my third letter to you. The first was to compliment you on your informative and objective style of interviewing others. I concluded that missal by asking you if you appeared on C-SPANNN on a regular basis. The second letter was the result of my spending more time viewing C-SPANNN. I soon became aware that you were appearing on a regular basis. With egg on my face from my lack of knowledge about you I indicated my conversion to the status of a regular C-SPANNN viewer.

In response to a recent inquiry I wrote to C-SPANNN (evidence to the contrary, I am not a prolific writer), I was sent a pamphlet on C-SPANNN. In it, I discovered that you not only service C-SPANNN as an interviewer, you also lent your talents as chairman and CEO. This would help to explain the consistently high standards presented by C-SPANNN on programs other than the ones that you present as an interviewer.

Sincerely,

[REDACTED]

P.S. I suspect Mr. Lamb is much too busy to give individual attention to mail he may receive from viewers. Even if he had access to said mail, I am certain he is much too busy to answer it. So, to whomever does the laborious chore of monitoring incoming letters (Is it you, Susan M. Kiley?) I would appreciate it if you would let Mr. Lamb know that the standards he maintains are appreciated. This is a selfish request on my part. It seems that what appears on television I most approve of quickly disappears because of lack of audience response. My several letters to C-SPANNN is my small effort to encourage the continuance of your standard of presentation.
