

I enjoy "Booknotes" and personally find the style of the moderator to be direct and refreshing. Others, however, do not share my estimate and their criticisms prompt me to ask, Are you committed to the present moderator of "Booknotes" for the foreseeable future? If so, do you envisage that your new program on books on C-SPAN2 will cause any search for additional moderators?

This is no place for a sales pitch, but I have good experience in teaching as well as in lawyering (and judging). I feel comfortable with books, ideas, and discourse. The publisher of my last book, From Games of God to Bubba's Field (a history of the Olympics), sent you a copy; however, it did not survive the cut.

If you wish, I'll send you a brief resume and, more important, a videotape in which I'll address some materials to assist a decision.

Given my status, I could not accept payment, but expenses would be another matter.

I hope you'll see fit to request the videotape and resume.

Sincerely,

Encl.: Card S-BK

Jan. 6, 1997

Dear Ms. Landry:

My query here concerns "Eooknotes" and I frankly feel somewhat awkward in the inquiry. But on occasion things evolve through awkwardness.

I enjoy "Booknotes" and personally find the style of the moderator to be direct and refreshing. Others, however, do not share my estimate and their criticisms prompt me to ask, Are you committed to the present moderator of "Booknotes" for the foreseeable future? If so, do you envisage that your new program on books on C-SPAN2 will cause any search for additional moderators?

This is no place for a sales pitch, but I have good experience in teaching as well as in lawyering (and judging). I feel comfortable with books, ideas, and discourse. The publisher of my last book, From Games of God to Bubba's Field (a history of the Olympics), sent you a copy; however, it did not survive the cut.

If you wish, I'll send you a brief resume and, more important, a videotape in which I'll address some materials to assist a decision.

Given my status, I could not accept payment, but expenses would be another matter.

I hope you'll see fit to request the videotape and resume.

Sincerely,

Encl.: Card S-BK