To Brian Lamb, C-Span,

1. your Book Notes programs are interminably boring.

Don't you ever interview authors who disagree with your Republican views?

2. you spent precious, valuable, expensive air time on Lobbyists and their cynical insinuations. It did not present a pleasant overview of our political process.

3. you crossed the line in a giant step down in your interview with a real creep named Brock, allowing him to spew his venomous hatred, and without questioning his motives, agenda or corroborative facts.

Was there NO ONE in the ranks of the Press available to dispute or challenge him, or did you expect the Administration to appear in the same room with him, in your pious, holier-than-thou invitation?

4. As my cable rates have gone up and up your subtle-as-a-ton-of-bricks bias has taken an ever downward turn.

Very Truly Yours,
