

O-WJ

10/30/95

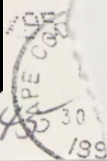

C-Span

444 No. Capital St.

Suite 412

Washington DC. 20001

Hatwich, MA. 02645

To Whom it Concerns,

Over the years,
C-Span has slowly become more liberal. i.e. it is presenting more people with liberal views.
I don't think it is my imagination and I wonder why
it has happened.

When C-Span first started it was a voice for conservatives.

This past weekend,

Farakan was shown 3 days in a row. President Clinton is on far more (too much) than any Republican politician.

Did the liberal establishment pressure you to have a balance of both conservative and liberal views? I saw Bryan Lamb shook-up when he discovered both guests were against Clinton and apologized profusely. But this morning, a liberal politician ~~or~~ reporter expounded his liberal viewpoint without any opposition.

Is Rush Limbaugh the only one to hold his ground?

Sincerely,

