Dear Mr. Lamb:

In general, I believe that C-SPAN is objective, giving equal time to both left, right and center political points of view.

However, sometimes you do not:

My particular complaint is the hours which C-SPAN dedicated to the bashing of President Clinton by David Brock of the American Spectator who, as you are aware, appeared unchallenged on C-SPAN on December 22. Furthermore, on December 23, Charles Lewis, Executive Director of the Center for Public Integrity appeared on C-SPAN, unchallenged, and also speculatively vilified the President.

I do respect C-SPAN for the historical and topical coverage which it brings to America. However, it is a disservice to this country to air, unchallenged, the right-wing freak show of pundits to which C-SPAN has recently catered.

Sincerely,
[REDACTED]
