

November 27, 1992

Mr. Bryan Lamb
C-Span
400 N. Capital St., Suite 650
Washington, DC 20001

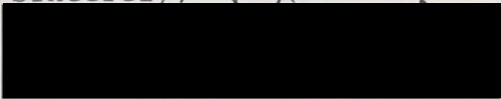

Dear Mr. Lamb:

First allow me to say how addicted I am to C-Span; so much so that I can identify 90% of all Senators by the sound of their voice. I have become so knowledgeable about how our government works, or in many cases, how it doesn't work, I can only credit C-Span for that insight. I have always felt C-Span was the only real source of unbiased information; until one call that came in during the interview with Hinckley and Brace on their book "Follow The Leader". That caller referenced your refusal to address a question concerning Rep. Gonzolas' and his "investigation" into the BNL "scandal". I was rather surprised because I had never witnessed your refusal to take a question posed to one of your guest.

I have become increasingly concerned that the numerous shows comprised of journalists and other media people have no conservative representation. I have heard this fact from several callers also. It is certainly an established fact that close to 75-80% of all media (print and electronic) people espouse a Democrat/liberal perspective. I feel that the "debate" or interview shows would best serve the public if at least one of the two/three media people would be from the opposite perspective. Even if you had to have Suzanne Fields, or one of the other Washington Times journalist, Mona Charen, Brent Bozell, Kate O'Brien, Linda Chavez, etc. rotated more often to at least level the field. When I see Fineman, Barbara Reynolds, Juan Williams, John Yang, or other journalist from The Washington Post, New York Times, LA Times, Newsweek, Time, etc. all on the same panel I know I'm in for a dose of liberalism.

I have recently purchased General Schwarzkopf's, George Will's, and Rush Limbaugh's books; you have had the two former ones on "Booknotes", and a caller had asked if you were going to have Rush on - you smiled, but I do not recall you answering the question. Rush's book has been the leading non-fiction book for 7-8 weeks out of the last 10-11 weeks; I think his book was also out before Schwarzkopf's and Will's and I would like to know why Rush has not been on Booknotes. I recall you also had Senator Gore on with his "Earth In The Balance" which has been determined to be a rather radical environmental view, opposed by other scientist - Dr. Ray for one. I can not think of one valid reason why Rush has not made your Booknotes. I look forward to a response on the above.

Sincerely,

Dayton, Ohio 45429

003594 DEC 792

[Redacted]

Dayton, Ohio 45429

DAYTON, OH 454
PM
30 NOV
1992

Mr. Bryan Lamb
C-Span
400 N. Capital St., Suite 650
Washington, DC 20001

