May 13, 1994.

This morning I was listening to your "Roundtable". There was mention of last night's CrossFire on CNN, which I happen to have watched.

Jerry Falwell made a statement: "The President should be the moral and spiritual leader!" This appalled and offended me. America elects a President, not a Pope!

I personally think that the real cancer in America is the religious fundamentalist movement. Only gay groups have realized this so far and I applaud them.

No wonder! J. Falwell and Pat Robertson keep preaching, gays are "not normal". They have elected themselves to be God's representatives, selling space in heaven, scaring people. To me, religious fundamentalists are sounding more and more like a new Spanish Inquisition.

I also like to mention, I enjoyed Alicia Sheppard (AJR) on C-Span this week. I read her article, and I agree with her.
