Gentleman and ladies,

I am writing to you to inquire why you, and the other members of the media (both print and television) have not been reporting about the activities of an organization known as NAMBLA (North American Man/Boy Love Association). An article in the October issue of Readers Digest was the first mention that I have seen anywhere in the media!

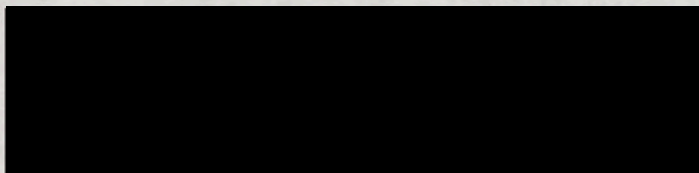

I would think that something like this should be big news and well worth investigating. Something like this should be told to parents all across the nation to let them know about this potential danger to their children. The article gave a few names of individuals associated with NAMBLA, and a couple of them were a major shock to me. The mans name was Roy B. Radow, and he was a school Psychologist at P.S. 75 in Queens, New York. The other was Peter Melzer, a teacher at New York city's prestigious Bronx High School of Science. It was like telling a farmer that the fox was in charge of security of the hen house!

There was more and you can read it for yourself, but I think that you get the gist of what I'm saying. Organizations like this should be exposed and brought under the light of public scrutiny, and not allowed to remain hidden. We all hear the media talk about child molesters, but not one word of people like these.

WHY?!

I await your response, and hope to hear on the news stations and news programs about this subject. It would be a great pity if the media refused to cover something like this because it just might be too controversial!!!

Sincerely,
