Dear Mr. Lamb

I am writing you because I never can get through on the phone.

I want to thank you for the wonderful programs you had on DD + 50. Both days were marvelous. However, I do have a few comments.

There was a very noticeable absence of women. I know of many, many nurses who were there through the whole thing. My former chief nurse was there with her unit in England and went all the way through. I'm sure there were many more. I also observed a lack of black soldiers and again I know of many who were there. As a nurse I worked in the V A Hospital system & know of many black men & women who were there through it all.

I think too much time was spent on Pamela Harriman and some other Englishmen whose bragging was a bit too much.

Thank you,
