Dear Sir:

This cartoon best explains the constant plebeian responses on your call-in segments of the Thomas-Hill hearing.

In my opinion, the calls, in large part, demonstrates our form of democracy, i.e., "by those who don't know".

It is not the form of government itself, but rather ourselves. We simply have failed to make ourselves intelligent while making ourselves sovereign!

I can only suggest that some sort of monitoring be placed on the calls you receive. Perhaps this is not possible, or would defeat your purpose, but a fool's opinion is just that!

Thank you,

P.S. For posterity, it might be wise that you capsulize the remarks made by Senator Byrd on the Senate floor.

LAISSEZ FAIRE

Laissez faire is best we say
To mould mankind in neat array.
Then clothe it all in parity
And call it a democracy.

Past kings were bad, and tyrants, too,
This we lost in bourgeois coup.
The subjects never humble now,
Each one a king, we do avow.

And to make us all a better race
The propertied will hold the mace.
For haven't they displayed the skill
To place the world on even keel?

Morals are important, too,
Socratic forms just will not do.
The secular norms we will embrace
For our advance to keep apace.

Corporation is the "tour de force"
We'll make them multinational, of course.
This faceless God will not be seen,
And we, the whole, will reign supreme.
