Dear Sir,

I just read the "C-SPAN MISSION".

I watched the Lani Guinier press conference and the "C-SPAN TODAY" presentation with Wolf Blitzer of CNN, Dan Goodgame of Time and Neil Lewis of the NY Times.

My considered guess is that none of these people have political, social and economic views that are center of right of center. I am sure I can say with great certainty they are closer to socialism than they are to capitalism. I might also add that their socialism would be one where they are important members of the power group.

I quit watching or listening to NPR and programs like McNeil/Lehrer. I do not believe in censorship and it is clear that these previously mentioned and C-Spann and a great many other media vehicles do. Their censorship is one where a viewpoint is repeated over and over and characterized as balanced.

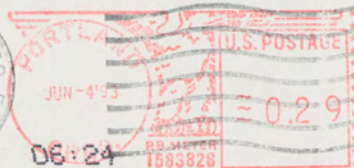

Your "mission" is not worth the paper it is written on!

Sincerely,
[REDACTED]
