Dear Mr. Lamb:

I watched your interview of George Will on the "Booknotes" program broadcast October 17, 1992. I enjoyed that program and made a special effort to watch the next week's show which featured Susan Faludi. I could not have been more disappointed with that show.

Your questions were stupid and pointless. I cannot imagine your asking Mr. Will, "When was the last word of Restoration actually written? Will. Is that your father's name? What is Oxford?" Substitute Backlash, Faludi, and Radcliffe into the appropriate spots and you'll have some of the queries you posed to Ms. Faludi. In so doing, you wasted time and failed to ask many of the questions which Ms. Faludi's methods and conclusions beg.

"Booknotes" is one of the last places I expect to find inane chatter. What a letdown.

Sincerely,
