Dear Sir:

Since there has been no answer to my letter six weeks ago, I assume you did not receive it and try one more time.

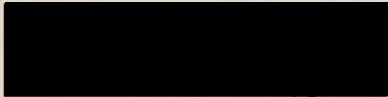

The Evening News from Moscow is a great idea that is ruined by poor production, problems that do not seem difficult to correct if someone will just take a look. It is painful and sometimes impossible to understand the lady announcers with their thick Slavic accents and poorly modulated speech. Sometimes the the sound-track from Moscow is so loud, it competes with the English version.

The solution is simple. Let your translators translate a written script for an English speaking person with some training in elocution to read while the video shows the pictures.

Thank you for correcting this vexation. The Russian news is very interesting and important to your viewers.

Merry Christmas
