Dear Sirs;

I am not one of those gushy people forever writing to say how much they like this and hate that. Such people strike me as useless - it's action, not words, that make an impression.

So, to demonstrate how much I approve of some of your recent programming, please sign me up for C-SPAN Review (or whatever it is that your magazine is named).

The discussion about school choice before the NTA several weeks ago was excellent, but what really showed me the value of your network was the prominent, in-depth coverage given the Libertarian Party convention. It was like a revelation: people were discussing real problems and offering real solutions. But, if not for C-SPAN, I would have missed it. I guess the "serious" media had important things like football and the MTV Awards to cover.

Keep up the good work (by the way, your on-the-air people hit just the right mixture of agreeableness and scepticism at the LP convention) and show me some more of these Libertarian candidates between now and next November.

Yours sincerely,
