Rep. Marge Roukema

No, the people do not want " change ". The people want " freedom ". The only change the people want is for secular powermonger-peopleowners to stop colluding with superstitionist powermonger-peopleowners in stealing freedom in pleasure, the only freedom that matters.

The change the people want is for peopleowning parasites to stop attacking the pleasures of the people to divide the people and trick the people out of realizing that it is the peopleowning parasites who the people should attack, not themselves.

The change the people want is for secular peopleowners to stop attacking the pleasures of the people to give a false appearance of producing something for a living while actually producing a lack of the thing living is for, pleasure. The change the people want is for superstitionist peopleowners to stop attacking the pleasures of the people to protect themselves from the superior competition of things superior to superstition at creating actual satisfaction.

Superstitionist peopleowners steal the peoples' freedom in pleasure in the knowledge that, because pleasure is the closest thing to the soul, if the people permit the peopleowners to steal their pleasure, they will permit the peopleowners to steal their souls, and then their property.

The change the people want is for secular peopleowners to stop colluding with superstitionist peopleowners in the knowledge that the mental illness of superstitionism makes them more driven than sane people and thus better organizers and more frequent voters. The change the people want is for secular peopleowners hoping to advance by colluding with superstitionist peopleowners to be made aware that colluding with superstitionist peopleowners in the stealing of freedom is treason, a war against the states by way of being a war against the purpose of the states; freedom, and that treason is a hanging crime, and that any benefit hoped to be gained by this collusion will be more than offset by even a petition for treason charges to be circulated to the media, not to mention the very real possibility of actual trial and hanging.
