Dear Mr. Lamb:

Just a note to assure you that my year-long lack of heretofore recurrent protestations over your shameless flogging of The Washington Times has, in no way, deminished my deep disappointment in you personally, and your program in general. I have long since had to trash my voodoo Lamb doll. The pins stuck in it each time you lent air-time to that desperate gang of ultra Reich-wingers rendered the distressed doll to a scant over-used pin cushion.

As previously stated, after months of your early-on 'WashTimes sucking' I now relegate time only for your Friday journalist roundtable and an occasional 'booknotes'. Last night's 'Booknotes' teased today's Purdin exposure - it gave me ulcers!

The only positive note that possibly came from the program is that it is obvious that Wes Purdin, while cut from the same fascist cloth as de-Borchgrave, is a far weaker reed than de Borchgrave was in that whole sick Sun Myung Moon operation.

I still am confused over your reasons for treating the Washtime rag as a competing, legitimate newspaper. You oft times plead program funding problems. Is it, then, merely that Washtime is a next-door-neighbor cheap date? Are your programmers lazy, looking for the easy way to fill time? I have heard Washtime flakes openly, on the air, fawning over your inviting them to future participation.

Do you have problems getting time with recognized media personalities? No money for long distance calls to set up appointments? Does the Washtimes have some hold over your operation? Are your sponsors, the whole Cable-complex, pressuring you? Inquisitive minds want to know.

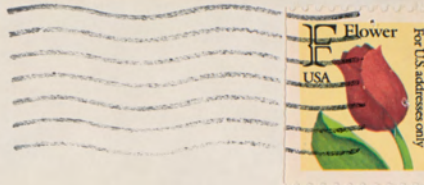

In its most unsinister form, the Wastimes is a propaganda arm of a foreign religious sect, perhaps lead by a Korean mystic who is legally a convicted felon. I say 'perhaps lead by' as, at worst, Washtimes could well be funded and beholden to the Korean Intelligence Service. (I fear one, when I smell one - due to 27 years of doing the same thing - in the Operations Directorate of the CIA.)

Need I remind you that Moon, (or whomever) has had to fork over 35 million big ones just to keep Washtimes afloat in 1991. Good God man, does that not ring any of your bells? My remaining Agency friends in D.C., most of whom are, naturally, right-wingers, speak of Washtimes as an alternate voice for the elitist, wealthy, old time Republican. Funny thing - not ONE of them subscribes!

Final suggestions: First read the book "Crazy for God" by Christopher Edwards. Then invite him on Booknotes. Or, read "Sun Myung Moon and the Unification Church" and invite the author, Fredrick Sontag. Even better yet, invite the grand old Moonie himself, he is, after all, the publisher.

Sincerely:
