June 16, 1990

Copy:
To: Brian Lamb
C-Span

Ruth Marcus
Reporter
Washington Post
1150 15th St. NW
Washington, D.C.

2279-90

JUN 27 REC'D

JUN 27 ANS'D

Dear Ms. Marcus:

Your comments on C-Span (Reporter's round-up?) were generally fairly objective. With regard to the obsessive attention about the Barry case from all sides, callers, Brian Lamb and Ernest White-- it makes one wonder about C-Span's constituency.

Just about your last comment, however, revealed why you are working for the commie-lib Washington Post. Whether brain-washed by the same sort of ideology of the faculty at your journalism classes, or by genetic make-up, you demonstrated the sort of neo-abolitionism which liberals identify with, when you stated that blacks are still being discriminated against, of course, by whites, as if discrimination is practiced solely by whites. Perhaps you are deaf and blind to the venomous threats and inflammatory rhetoric and hatisms of the Louis Farrakhans and the Al Sharptons-- and the lockstep voting habits among blacks.

It never seems to occur to the commie-lib or even the benign liberal that the black, wherever he can, discriminates equally, if not more so, against a white and any other group that dares to enter a black area. Oh, yes, there are black areas and neighborhoods, aren't there? And how safe do you feel, if you just happen to be, and alone, in such a neighborhood? And, how would you have felt, as a reporter who was sent to cover the "celebration" in Detroit the other day? Are you that immured by the denial defense mechanism as an Ernest White, who could not if he tried admit of black deficiencies or to get out of the black's role as the victim?

Yours truly,

[redacted]

[redacted]
Broderick, CA 95605

cc Brian Lamb, C-Span