Dear Mr Lahm,

I am writing to make a few comments about the C-Span Network.

I find C-Span to be a very good thing for the country in general. It gives the people out in the hinterlands a chance to get their two cents in, and as times goes on I am finding that there are a great many people who call in apparently feel as I do, that we do not necessarily believe the line we get from the mainstream media on a daily basis.

I would like to take issue with you on your choices for the panels you have on friday morning for the roundtable. For anyone to believe that these panels are balanced with the conservative view given equal rank, is frankly quite laughable.

Three guests that were on just days ago are a very good example. Eleanor Clift, stated quite proudly after the 92 election that after all Bill Clinton had to lie to get elected. Howard Lapham was quite profound when he declared on your program, he didn't know any Liberals and he didn't think there were anymore in Washington DC. Also what was quite funny about Mr Lapham was when you asked him about his book, and he proudly proclaimed it had sold 17,000 copies. Rush Limbaughs new book sold 600,000 copies the first week.

Bob schieffer was just on today and when the lady from Florida challenged him on the medias challenge to the administration about the economy he squired a little and said the media never covered the economy much therefore they may be excused for their inequities. I seemed to remember the media beating the drums of the poorest economy in the last 50 years day in and day out during the 92 campaign as they were trying to assist in the demise of Geo. Bush. Give us a break please!

Keep up the good work, watching these Liberals trying to disavow their bias is more fun than watching a Three Stooges Movie.

Sincerely,
