Dear Mr. Lamb;

Don't you think that the hard part of your programs (which I really do like) is that these so-called pundits have a bully pulpit in front of your cameras and the callers or those of us who don't get through ,don't have. And so many people listening, take these people at face value and forget they too can be prejudiced and one has to sift what they say and know that they should not take on others opinions just because they are talking to millions on TV.

I think an added part of your program might be some of the opinions and letters that you must get from those of us who are disappointed-tried- to-get-through callers. I for one like to air off what I feel. For instance, in 1948 when I first came out to Calif., in addition to working and taking care of a family, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I SAW the fear of teenagers--yes, largely Blacks--who faced simple questions which Pro-life people are not helping women face: How do I feed this baby? How did I end up here all alone? Where will the money come from? How can I finish school? Where is the fellow who got me in this spot? Choice in the end has to be a woman's decision just as a vasectomy is a man's. I haven't heard anyone asking the government to regulate that, have you? And as the Black community of Richmond told me recently--the grandmothers are no longer staying home to take care of unwanted babies. No wonder so many of us welcomed and want Roe vs Wade to be sustained. Why should men decide for us?

Sincerely

P.S. You have had 2 editors and ex-reporter of the Arkansas Democratic Gazette. I am sorry one paper is able to swallow up another newspaper and therefore can govern ~~thought~~ public thought. Letters to the Editor have no way of insisting their rebuttals be printed.

I wanted to write to the woman editor of that paper that with C-Span having her on meant Bush-~~Qwa~~ wouldn't need a Willie Horton ad this year. Everyone has brought up Jennifer or Jennifer Flower this week - Evans & Novak, Sununu, Caspere, Washington Week - probably on your program too. Wouldn't it be nice if programs checked with each other & (Charon too of course) & Not all bring up the same negatives?
