Editors,

In recent years there have been many demonstrations in Washington for various causes. Some were controversial and some were somewhat frivolous; but the demonstrators were heard and seen which is as it should be. However, the media has not been fair in many instances and has given some activists more coverage and sympathy than others. In many cases, national celebrities gave the demonstration more attention which I find rather offensive, because the attention was on them rather than the cause of the other demonstrators. Their agendas are no more important than those of the mainstream Americans who are larger in number and less in influence and therefore should not be ignored.

Attached please find the bulletin about a proposed demonstration "For Our Live POW's" which has just come through the POW network. I could give you thousands of instances and hundreds of documents which the press has totally ignored....in fact, except for a few news services, the press will not touch this issue despite the fact that millions of Americans, and the majority of us know that men were left behind after WWII, the Korean War, the cold war, and the war in Vietnam and Southeast Asia. Though this abandonment has been by our government, the press is much to blame. "The press knows the men are there but won't touch it" from Accuracy in the Media.

In that we, the people, have the right to demonstrate; I feel that the press has the duty and obligation to give it your full attention and coverage. I cannot think of a more noble cause than to help us bring these men home. They defended the first amendment that you continue to have.

Sincerely,
